Announcement of the

1973
Certifying
Examination for Primary Care
Physician's Assistants

Wednesday
December 12, 1973

This certifying examination has been designed to assess the competence of the assistant to the primary care physician in carrying out a variety of health care functions. These functions have been identified as ones that the primary care physician's assistant should definitely be skilled in performing, and are summarized on the last page of this brochure.

Examination Schedule

The certifying examination scheduled for December 12, 1973 will consist of a one-day written examination.

Morning Session

A multiple-choice examination designed to assess the candidate's knowledge and skill in applying knowledge related to clinical material presented in printed and pictorial form.

Afternoon Session

A programmed testing technique involving simulated clinical cases in adult and pediatric medicine designed to assess the candidate's skill in gathering pertinent information about patients and in making appropriate management decisions.

Eligibility Requirements

An individual is eligible to register for the first administration of this examination if he has graduated or will have graduated by January 31, 1974 from:

1. A program that has been approved by the AMA Council on Medical Education for training assistants to the primary care physician.
2. A program that has received preliminary approval by the AMA Council on Medical Education for training assistants to the primary care physician.
3. A program that has been funded by the Bureau of Health Manpower Education (not included in the above categories) that trains assistants to the primary care physician.
4. A program of at least four months' duration within a nationally accredited school of medicine or nursing that trains pediatric or family nurse practitioners.

Registration Procedures

1. The deadline date for receipt of applications for the certifying examination for primary care physician's assistants is October 10, 1973. (The official application form accompanies this announcement.)
2. A passport-type photograph of the registrant must be affixed to the form provided.
3. The fee for this examination is $55. Check or money order for this amount, made payable to the National Board of Medical Examiners must accompany the application.
4. Detailed instructions are included with the application.

Withdrawals and Cancellations

Any candidate who is registered for the examination, and who fails to appear, forfeits his fee unless his absence is due to illness or some other reason acceptable to the Board, or unless he cancels his registration two weeks in advance of the examination date.

If a candidate cancels or fails to appear for the examination, he must reapply at the time he wishes to register for a subsequent administration.

Examination Results

Candidates will be advised of examination results during the latter part of February. In the event of failure on the December examination, candidates may apply for reexamination at the time of the second administration that is expected to be held in late 1974. Applications and announcement of the next administration of the certifying examination will be sent to any candidate who fails the December examination.

Certification

Candidates who have successfully passed the certifying examination for primary care physician's assistants and who have graduated from a training program falling into one of the four categories for eligibility will receive certification by the National Board as of the date of satisfactory completion of the training program.

Choice of Examining Center

A list of provisional examining centers for December 12, 1973 is given on the next page.

Applications are processed in the order in which they are received. If the center selected is filled when the application is received, the candidate will be assigned to the nearest center with available space. He will be advised of such a revised assignment and will be given the opportunity to seek an alternative.

At the close of registration, in the event that too few candidates have requested a given center, it may be necessary to cancel the 1973 examination in that center. Candidates will then be assigned to the nearest center with available space.
